PRESS RELEASE

GREENLEE ADDS TO FISH POLE LINE WITH FP3 Little fish pole offers extra hand in tight situations

ROCKFORD, Ill. August 2006 —Greenlee, a Textron company (NYSE: TXT), continues expansion in its fish pole line with the introduction of the handy FP3 three-foot fish pole. The FP3 is a telescoping pole that extends to three-feet long, but collapses to 6-3/8-inches when not in use. It weighs only 1.6 ounces and is designed for residential and non-residential electricians, VDV premise wiring installers, and safety and alarm installers.

“We developed the FP3 to be used for pulling wires or cables over suspended ceilings or under sub-floors when you need just a little more reach,” said Jim Eisele, senior product manager for Greenlee.

The working end of the FP3 has a hook that is perfect for grabbing cables that are three quarters inch or less in diameter. The FP3 is made of eight section of stainless steel so it will extend and retract smoothly. It has a clip so it can be stored in a shirt or jacket pocket.

For more information on the FP3 three-foot fish pole, or other products from Greenlee, a Textron company, call 1-800-435-0786 or visit www.greenlee.com.
